The VTech 2-lines cordless telephones and handsets are available with a range of features. These products come in several colors and work on multiple types of frequency setups.What are the frequency options for VTech 2-line cordless phones?DECT 6.0: DECT 6.0 stands for "digital enhanced cordless technology," which works over a variety of frequencies. DECT digitizes the sounds produced by the human voice for clarity when traveling through communications lines.900 MHz: This is a basic frequency that also includes functionality for using the handsets as walkie-talkies.1.9 to 5.8 GHz: These cordless telephones can operate at higher frequencies that do not interfere with other household electronics.What are some features of VTech cordless phones?Caller ID: Caller ID shows the area code and phone number of incoming calls. You can also set up a contact list with the Caller ID system so you know who's calling you.LED: The buttons of the cordless phone handsets are backlit with LEDs. The handset bases illuminate when the cordless phone is in use and when the handset is charging on its base.LCD: The Caller ID and other information is shown in black characters the handset's LCD screen.Digital answering system: These home phones have a built-in accessory for functioning as an answering system. You can record your own greeting for the answering system or leave the original computer-generated one as the answering system's greeting.What is the difference between a speakerphone and a handset?A speakerphone uses the cordless phone's built-in microphone to capture the sound waves of your voice from a greater distance away from the mouthpiece, and the caller will be able to hear your voice. When these DECT handsets are on the regular mode, the caller will be able to hear you when you speak directly into the mouthpiece of the handset.Are VTech 2-line cordless phones expandable?Up to 12 of these 2-line cordless handsets can be used together in order to have a conference call on two different telephone lines. The DECT cordless handsets will alert you to an incoming caller. You can also set up the answering system to pick up any incoming calls if you do not want to be disturbed while on a 2-line call with the cordless headset.How far is the range of the VTech cordless phone?If you want to set the DECT cordless phone down somewhere or put it on speakerphone and walk around while you talk, it is important to know how far you can be away from the handset. When the cordless handset is on speakerphone mode, you can walk up to 300 feet away in any direction, and the caller at the other end will be able to hear you. Activate and hold the button to confirm that you’re human. Thank You!
